Purple Reign!

The Meath delivered a spectacular Purple Day fundraising and awareness campaign which saw buildings in Guildford, Godalming and Cranleigh lit up purple in honour of International Epilepsy Awareness Day (Purple Day). Godalming's landmark Pepperpot building and High Street provided the perfect canvas for the Meath's Purple Day 'Yarn Bomb' which was beautifully adorned with 4,000 hand made hearts in honour of Purple Day. Continued on pages 6-8.

A Letter from Lindsay

Dear Reader

Spring is here! It's always great to reach springtime with the promise of lighter evenings and warmer days. The Horticulture group's purple tulips have sprung up and they team with the theme for March perfectly. I'm sure that you'll have seen or heard about lots of Purple themed events and activities going on at the Meath and in the local community. It's been a fantastic and high profile fundraising and awareness campaign and I do hope that you enjoy seeing the many purple pictures and features from our Purple Day antics. Purple Day has been a culmination of lots of hard work but has also shown a truly heartfelt and overwhelmingly supportive response from so many people in the local community, including the local media. The Meath Purple Heart Yarn Bomb which adorned the Pepperpot and High Street for a week, together with purple lit landmarks across Guildford and Godalming have really made an impact and we look forward to welcoming new supporters to the Meath as a result of it.

I hope you enjoy catching up on our (mostly purple) news and look forward to seeing you soon.

Kind regards

CEO, The Meath Epilepsy Charity

We've Got Skills!

The skills centre hosted a fun afternoon of Purple Day Activities. 55 residents enjoyed attending the purple themed Quiz , Afternoon Tea and Dancing! The event was lots of fun for residents who enjoyed dressing up in purple outfits for the special occasion. The Purple themed quiz was very popular as was dancing to Purple Rain! Well done to the Meath Skills Centre Monday cookery group who made the delicious purple cupcakes.

Singing in the (Purple) Rain

The 'Backstage' Meath Choir have been rehearsing a new set of set of songs including 'Purple Rain' which fast became the Meath's signature song for Purple Day. The group which is led by Phoebe Gaydon and supported by singers from Guildford and Godalming Jazz Choir along with Meath staff and volunteers have truly gone from strength to strength.

The fundraising department has assisted with the co-ordination of two informal community singing activities during March. Pupils from St Hilary's School Choir practised Phoebe Gaydon's new arrangement of 'Purple Rain' and joined the Meath Choir for a morning of joint singing and performance in the skills centre. Mr Wade, Head of Singing at St Hillary's School commented that the pupils had really enjoyed the activity and that they would love another opportunity to work with the people we support in the future. Backstage of course welcomes the chance to work with St Hillary's again and had a great time singing with the school choir!

During the week of Purple Day the Meath choir surprised customers at Waitrose Godalming with their wonderful Purple Day set. Thanks to Waitrose Godalming for allowing us to sing in store and fundraise for the Meath, we raised over £200 in store but also helped to keep the Meath and epilepsy in the hearts and minds of the local community.

Around the Houses

We  Minglers!

'Minglers' Social Evenings are now a firm favourite in many Meath resident's diaries. The group's co-ordinators, Jo and Kay, have hosted two great social evenings during March. Residents enjoyed a quiz evening early in the month and then, as Purple Day approached, the group got crafty and made lots of purple felt hearts which were on display as part of the Meath's Purple Day Yarn Bomb installation at the Pepperpot and High Street.

Stop Press!

Regan, resident at The Cottages, visited Eagle Radio's news team presenter Carol Musgrove with Helen Jackson, Marketing Co-ordinator and Sinnan, Support Worker. Regan and Helen's interview about epilepsy and the Meath's awareness and fundraising campaign for Purple Day has been aired on the radio station which broadcasts to 250,000 listeners across Surrey and Hampshire. Regan spoke openly about her experience of living with epilepsy, the challenges that it has presented and how living at the Meath enables her to overcome these challenges and to make the most of life. Giving a radio interview was a huge challenge for Regan, who, despite her nerves, gave listeners a great insight into her experiences. As always Regan was fully supported by her caring support worker. Sinnan kindly drove Regan and Helen to the radio station and was impressively skilled at keep Regan relaxed which ensured that the interview was a really positive experience.

John & Regan Talk to the Surrey Advertiser about Living with Epilepsy

Regan and John (also a resident at the Cottages) spoke to the Surrey Advertiser's Eleanor Fleming who included their interview about living with complex epilepsy in a double page feature on the Meath's Purple Day Campaign. Well done to John and Regan who did a fantastic job of telling readers how the Meath supports them through thick and thin.

 She said: "A lot of the time it is an evening seizure and it can be very scary. The whole body jerks and it's not with it. She will be moaning and banging. It's when she does cover her face in her hands, she'll cry and I'll cry with her. But the morning, she will forget everything that happened before the seizure."
 Despite the complexity of her condition, Regan is extremely independent and loves to help others. She participates in events and activities at the Meath, including geography, history and science, and volunteers at International Epilepsy Centre in Wokingham.
 Like Regan, John enjoys a variety of activities at the Meath, the support workers in classes, including photography and art, and loves to compare classes on a Friday.
 Both of them would like to reduce the stigma and raise awareness of their conditions. They participated in a variety of events held by the Meath for International Epilepsy Awareness Day on Thursday.
 Regan added: "I think young people in schools should learn about epilepsy, and if they have any brothers or sisters with epilepsy, they would know what to do."
SURREY residents found International Epilepsy Awareness Day (Purple Day) an Easter egg hunt and a chance to thank to the Meath Epilepsy Charity.
 Epilepsy affects approximately one in 100 people at some point during their lives, yet it is often misunderstood and even stigmatised. The Meath is a local specialist care home with a epilepsy day centre and social enterprise, which supports people who have complex epilepsy and associated disabilities to live as independently as possible, while the charity works hard to ensure the very best of care to the people they support. The Meath is also keen to raise the profile of epilepsy.
 In honour of Purple Day, buildings were lit purple across the county, including Goddington Castle, Turgate, The Friary Shopping Centre, Goddington and the Meath Epilepsy Charity. Goddington saw the launch of the Meath's social high street website on the day, in addition to smaller shops and businesses. The Meath's social high street website is a joint venture between the charity and a local independent department store.  As well as lighting up local venues, Meath residents, staff and volunteers were busy making their Purple Day plans.
 Local lighting and evening groups made more than 2,000 purple hearts, which adorned the Friary Park and Goddington High Street, and the Meath choir performed its own rendition of Purple Haze at Meath's town hall on Wednesday. The Tinnon Compton primary school also received a Purple Day makeover in honour of the campaign.
 The Meath's head of fundraising and communications, said: "We're overwhelmed with the level of support we've received from many businesses, community groups and individuals in all of our surrounding local areas. Awareness of epilepsy while also raising funds."

Cedar View Bakery!

Hocus Crocus!

The Meath was fortunate enough to have the local famous 'Compton Phone Box' given a purple make-over as part of our Purple Day Campaign. When Helen Jackson, Marketing Co-ordinator, was tasked with producing 200 faux purple crocuses as part of the phone box decoration she knew she would need some Meath Magic! With the kind help of the Skills Centre Arts & Crafts Group and clients at Cedar View, who were supported by Lisa, the beautiful Purple flowers were ready in time for the Purple Day Phone Box!

Full House for Hambledon Bingo

Earlier in the month, (before turning every event purple became mandatory), residents at Hambledon enjoyed a relaxed evening of Bingo together. The chance of winning is lots of fun but nothing beats chatting with friends!

Purple Treats at Thursley

You can always rely on Thursley to team with the theme. Residents worked hard at creating these pretty purple butterfly cupcakes. Mix the winning combination of red and blue to make purple proved tricky but Marjorie was pleased as punch with the results. Many Meath residents use Makaton to communicate, like Thursley's cake icing, the sign for purple mixes red and blue.

Spot Light On...Lindsay Hill, CEO

Lindsay Hill, Chief Executive Officer of the Meath took the time to catch up with Meath Matters in order to give her take on what makes the Meath such a special place. It's clear from talking to Lindsay that she is extremely proud of the people we support at the Meath. An array of photos of Meath residents enjoying activities and accomplishing challenges lines her office walls which, Lindsay explains, help her to keep focused on what motivates her each and every day.

Lindsay explained “I'm really proud to be surrounded by so many inspirational people who are willing to challenge themselves, learn, try new activities and who accept people as they find them.” Clearly Lindsay also doesn't take for granted the fact that Meath staff “never cease to pull together and go the extra mile for the people we support, I'm extremely grateful for and proud of that”.

Recently two new Registered House Mangers have been appointed, Jo Axton and Tracy Toth. Lindsay explained that with the Registered House Mangers in place she is better positioned to focus on her next key projects which are to work smarter and make the charity's financial position stronger. While focusing on these two key areas, Lindsay supports the Registered Managers to continue making improvements with residential care. Like most charities, the Meath is having to work proactively in order to attract funds. One of the main challenges that the Meath continues to face is that care package fees for residents who have been at the Meath for a number of years do not increase while the cost of living continues to rise. As well as putting an increased emphasis on fundraising, Lindsay and her team are addressing this issue by working towards having a full team of permanent support staff in place. Recruitment has been an increasing challenge, this is largely due to a rapidly increasing demand for 1:1 care. “We are in the process of filling Support Worker positions. While using agency staff has provided us with a short term solution to our developing needs, the use of permanent staff will better serve our need in the long-term”.

While Lindsay and her team at the Meath are busy making on-going improvements to current services, she also looks forward to launching an exciting new project in 2020. Having worked in care for many years, Lindsay is a passionate advocate for enabling people who live with complex epilepsy and disabilities to not only live as independently as possible but to embrace all that life has to offer. Lindsay will be launching a new apprenticeship scheme which will encourage and support Meath clients to take up volunteering and employment opportunities in the local community. The exciting new apprenticeship scheme promises to add another string to the Meath's bow as it continues to support adults with complex epilepsy and associated disabilities to achieve their individual goals in life.

Fundraising News

The Meath was the local charity on everyone's lips during the week of Purple Day! The Purple Lit Buildings, Godalming High Street Yarn Bomb and Compton Phone Box generated lots of interest on social media, on the radio and in local press. We are hugely grateful to Lightscaapes Ltd for lighting shops in Godalming and venues in Cranleigh and to Ian Lee for lighting venues in Guildford, the Pepperpot and Changing Perceptions. Thanks to the kind support of Compton Village and their talented but secretive Phone Box decorator, local people have enjoyed a drive by Purple themed surprise in support of the Meath.

Meath Purple Yarn Bomb Hits Godalming High Street!

In addition to the purple lit buildings and phone box was the beautiful purple heart yarn bomb. 4,000 handmade knitted and sewn purple hearts adorned Godalming High Street's Pepperpot, sign posts, bollards and railings all the way down the High Street. The breath-taking and poignant installation provoked much discussion and interest and even got people talking about epilepsy. Pictured below is Harvey who told Meath Matters that he was pleased to see the Yarn Bomb as he thinks it helped to increase awareness of epilepsy. Harvey explained that he has epilepsy and that he found that there was not as much awareness of the condition at his school as he had hoped, the Meath would be delighted to visit and give an assembly talk.

We are so grateful to all the people who kindly made the purple hearts for our Yarn Bomb. Stich by stich 150 people from the local community took the time and effort to each create a part of the installation. Pictured above are Heart Makers who attended our thank you tea and cake gathering at Changing Perceptions and below are pictures of some of the makers at work. Groups who knitted hearts for us include Farncombe Day Centre, Godalming Meadow WI, Ockford WI, Send Prison, Milford Mother's Union, Prior's Field School, St Hilary's School and many individuals.

Many individuals also made knitted and sewn purple hearts. Above supporters Margaret and Matilda made over 400 sewn felt hearts!

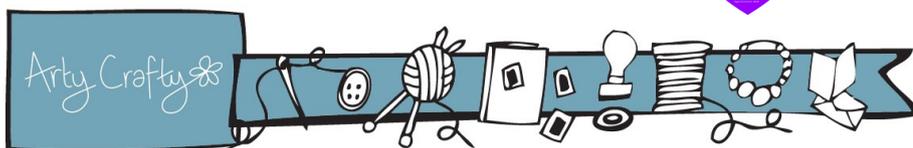

Clare at 'I Made This Crafts', Church St, Godalming turned her window purple and encouraged crafty locals to make hearts for us.

Members of Send Prison WI knitted purple hearts for the Yarn Bomb Installation. Group leader Dina told Meath Matters "The group enjoy having activities which will benefit charities and people in the community. They were keen to take part in this project because many of the members of the group have a personal connection with epilepsy. There is an above average number of prisoners who live with epilepsy, this is largely due to trauma sustained during head injury. It's great that the group were able to contribute to a project that really means something to them and they look forward to a visit from Helen at the Meath who will show them photos of the Godalming Yarn Bomb for Purple Day." Dina Lincoln, Resettlement Department.

'Arty Crafty' craft shop also turned their window purple and were a huge help with spreading the word about our secret Yarn Bomb plans among local knitters!

Making Purple Day Their Business!

So many businesses from across Surrey and West Sussex held fundraising and awareness activities in support of the Meath Purple Day Campaign. Fundraised money is still pouring in and the Meath Fundraising and Marketing team are so pleased that so many shops, restaurants and offices have kindly supported the charity.

Our friends at Colgate Palmolive, who previously visited the Meath for a CSR volunteering day, held an office cake sale and with matched funding raised a fantastic £800 for the charity.

Michael More-Molyneux, Lord-Lieutenant of Surrey and his wife Sarah kindly hosted a lunch in support of the Meath on Purple Day. Borough and Town Mayors from across Surrey turned out to enjoy the lunch gathering. In addition to raising funds for the Meath the charity were thrilled that such a high profile event was held in support of epilepsy awareness day and the Meath.

Guildford Fire Station supports the Meath! Having allowed the Meath to have a stall at their recent open day the fire station will be holding their annual car wash in support of the Meath...and they've even encouraged their friends at Godalming Fire Station to do the same!

Other local Businesses supported the Meath in many different ways for Purple Day!

Mayor of Surrey Heath Shows his love for the Meath on Purple Day!

Cllr. Dan Adams, Mayor of Surrey Heath supports the Meath as one of his nominated charities during his mayoral year. Dan kindly invited Helen to his regular Eagle Radio podcast slot to talk to listeners about the many businesses who had pledged to support the Meath during Purple Day. On Purple Day Dan Adams and his wife Sarah Adams were a whirlwind of purple and gold chains as they kindly supported the Meath by visiting many key Purple Day participants.

Thank you Dan & Sarah for your sterling work in support of the Meath on Purple Day!

Locals are used to enjoying the 'Compton Phone Box' decked out for every special occasion of the calendar year. The Meath were thrilled to have their wish for a Purple Day phone box granted by members of the local village of Compton who have adopted the phone box. Having created 200 purple crocuses the Meath were thrilled to see the phone box decorated for their Purple Day Campaign and it proved to be a high profile aspect of the awareness campaign. Not only has it attracted lots of interests and comments on social media but the Meath fundraising team have recently been offered 'charity of the year' with the 'Compton Little Theatre', a wonderful opportunity which can be attributed to the fabulous phone box!

On the run up to Purple Day Helen Jackson gave a live interview on local community radio station 'Kane FM'. Helen spoke to listeners about epilepsy, the work of the Meath and the Meath's plans to light up the local area purple. Huge thanks to Kane FM for their support.

Community Organisations also Teamed with the Theme...

Godalming Meadrow WI held a Purple Mufti Day and cake sale in support of the Meath. Members of the group also knitted purple hearts for the Godalming Yarn Bomb. Following a visit to the Meath before Christmas Helen looks forward to visiting the local WI group to explain more about epilepsy, the Meath and how easy it is to support the charity.

Member's of Godalming Baptist Church Friendship group held a purple dress up day for their March meeting in support of the Meath. As a local church group many members have a personal connection with the Meath and were pleased to support the charity for International Epilepsy Awareness Day.

Purple Zumba's group leader Karen got her class members involved in our campaign's most high energy way to raise funds for the Meath on Purple Day! Karen commented, "Purple is my favourite colour and I love the work of the Meath so holding a Purple Day fundraiser Zumba class was a must do!"

Godalming Cubs recently had a talk where they learnt about the Meath, epilepsy and associated disabilities as part of working towards a new badge. The Meath were pleased to see that they felt inspired to hold a purple Mufti Day in support of Purple Day!

Children at Moss Lane School, Godalming held a Purple Mufti Day in support of the Meath on Purple Day. Staff and pupils were delighted to have the Mayor of Surrey Heath, Cllr. Dan Adams and Sarah Adams, visit.

The Moss Lane mini Peppercot play equipment got a mini Yarn Bomb make-over for the occasion and pupils Matilda and Sammy gave an interview for 'That's Surrey TV' with Head Teacher Mrs Abbott in order to explain why it was important for the school to support the Meath on Purple Day. The children at Moss Lane had an assembly talk earlier in the year and are fantastic and much valued mini Meath supporters!

Prior's Field School supported the Meath on Purple Day with a handmade 'head ware' competition and mufti day. The 3 school house colours are purple, red and blue – as pupil and Meath volunteer Hazel pointed out to her teachers, red and blue combined make purple! Thanks to Hazel's enthusiasm and support for the Meath, Helen Jackson was invited to give a whole school assembly talk and we are so thrilled to have had support from the whole school for Purple Day. Hazel began volunteering at Changing Perceptions Café as part of her Duke of Edinburgh Award. Having completed her D of E, Hazel continues to volunteer at Changing Perceptions as she enjoys it so much! Thank you Hazel for your on-going support as a volunteer but also for getting the whole school on-board with fundraising and the awareness campaign for Purple Day!

Thanks also to the many Individual Supporters who kindly held fundraising events in Support of the Meath on Purple Day!

We are so grateful to the many individual supporters who have taken part in our campaign by holding purple day tea parties, coffee mornings and supper parties. Supporter and relative of a Meath resident commented "It was a fun and easy way to support the Meath and I'm really pleased with how much we raised!".
